NOTE.

THE simple music which is now published was arranged two years ago for some performances of The Holy Night, given with some Bethlehem tableaux, in this parish. A certain amount of incidental music seemed to be required, in addition to the songs, and in putting it together I aimed at using familiar airs and carol tunes, etc. ; the music therefore does not lay claim to much originality, as, indeed, will be apparent. If it has in any way caught the spirit of simple reverence which breathes through Miss Converse's beautiful little Masque I am more than satisfied.

It will be found to be a great gain if an organ and violin are available, in addition to the piano ; parts for these instruments can be hired from the publishers.

A. G. B.

ST. MATTHEW'S, WESTMINSTER.

SEPTEMBER, 1914.

P.S.—It was the direction of the Author that "this shall be the music of The Shepherd's Song—the old tune, 'O sons and daughters, let us sing.' "

Persons of the Masque.

MARY—She shall be a little maiden, fair-haired, and her gown shall be white, covered over with a long hooded cloak, sky blue. The hood she weareth about her face.

JOSEPH—He is a sturdy lad in a rough gown, long and brown. In his hand he holdeth a carpenter's wooden mallet ; at his girdle do hang three iron nails, very large. JOSEPH hath a grizzled head, which may be powdered.

THE HOLY CHILD—This may be a little figure of wax or porcelain, fashioned very delicately.

THE THREE SHEPHERDS—They be three little lads, wearing short gowns of a light tanned colour, and mantles of sheeps' skins ; but if these be not convenient, they may wear cloaks of cotton-flannel, unbleached. And they must carry shepherds' crooks.

THE THREE WISE MEN—These shall be three boys of divers age. The one which is MELCHIOR shall be fourteen years of age, or thereabout. He shall go bent, on a staff, with a beard flowing as far as to his waistband, and yet farther. This beard shall be white cotton, and tied about his chin. In his hand he beareth a crown of bright gold, or that appeareth like gold, which he shall give to THE HOLY CHILD.

The other king, which is CASPAR, shall be of a swarthy countenance, or even a young negro, if such an one be at hand. Ten years of age shall he be ; and walking he swingeth a censer.

Now BALTHASAR is the most youngest of these three kings. He is a little lad of eight years. In his hand he lifteth up the box of ointment. And all they three be turbaned as to their heads, and richly clad in long robes, and girded with a sash.

THE ANGELS—All the little girls and young maidens shall be Angels. Their robes are white, long, and there are no sleeves ; and crosswise on the breast be two bands of braided gold, narrow, and underneath a girdle of a third narrow band, a high girdle. These Angels' wings shall be tall, pointed, and white, or else golden.

THE COCK—He weareth a yellow vest, made to be rounded out with a little pillow beneath. A red coat he weareth, and the sleeves of this be cut and sewn after such a fashion that when he flappeth his arms these make a semblance of wings. And a green tail he weareth, which is made with many strips of cambric curved by wires and caught in a clustering knot. He hath a black cap, and on the top of this there standeth upright a cock's comb, bright red. Over his nose he weareth a sharp beak, but his mouth remaineth uncovered, that he may speak the more easily. Yellow are his stockings, and his shoes cut in three points on the toe. But at his heels there is a long spur. And if any little boy have very fat legs he shall not play the part of the cock.

THE RAVEN—This is a black bird. His tail standeth out stiff behind him. His beak is very long. His wings he must spread very wide when he will. Let him have black hair.

THE LAMB—He lieth on the ground beside the Shepherds. He weareth a sheep's skin, or a white coat, and a little tail that he may frisk by a string what time he bleateth.

THE OX AND THE ASS—These two be only heads of pasteboard, which do lean out of window. It needs but one boy that shall speak for them twain, and nod the head of the Ox and wag the Ass his ears.

The Holy Night.

And Now Beginneth the Masque to Play.

When the curtain shall be drawn, the Stage appeareth so and so: To the one side there may be the gable end of a little shed. This hath a door that shall open down its mid length when the time appointed is come. Above, on the gable, sitteth an ANGEL; wherefore this framework needs be stout builded. To the one side and the other of the door Angels stand likewise. All these three have a face as of one that waiteth, thinking his own thoughts; neither are they observed of the Shepherds nor of the Beasts. In that side of the shed most near the front of the stage shall be a little window, and the Ox and the Ass look forth. Over against this shed a little mound riseth up—and mayhap it is made of sand—and on this the COCK is perched, who anon doth rake with his toes in the sand, anon he pecketh at the RAVEN, which walketh sedate about the heap of sand, or resteth still with his head covered underneath his wing in the seemly fashion of his kind. But ere long he must walk again. Now mid-way betwixt this little shed and this mound, and in the front of the stage, the Shepherds lie on the ground, and their LAMB with them.

But first let this Musick be heard:—

Introduction.

(Now immediately are the heavens opened, which by-meaneth that there hath been around the back and sides of this stage, some two feet separate from the wall, a dark curtain, and, this being withdrawn, there are disclosed Angels, as many as may be, which stand in a long row a four foot space from the floor, on a narrow scaffold builded close by the wall. The Angels be garmented like to the three, but they stand close one after one; their hands be laid crosswise on their breasts and their wings do rise up in points folded above their heads. And from henceforth while this Masque dureth the Angels shall stand here, and it is their part to sing "Alleluia!" But first do they chaunt, immediately the curtain is withdrawn.)

CURWEN

EDITION

A Choral Drama for Choral and Dramatic Societies

BETHLEHEM

(Curwen Edition 3624)

By RUTLAND BOUGHTON

The book is adapted from the old Coventry Nativity Play, and the music, though mainly original, is based on the traditional Christmas Carols, and is original, not in the sense of being new, but of going back to the origins of English play and song.

The work was written for stage performance by the Glastonbury Festival Players, and is therefore suitable for dramatic societies. At the same time the many choral sections make it eminently suitable for concert performance, and a special edition arranged for choral societies is issued.

SOME PRESS OPINIONS

'The beauty of the old melodies is not obscured but enriched. The composer has handled his choral resources cleverly and has avoided the least suggestion of monotony.'—Bath Chronicle.

'One can recall nothing in recent years at once so splendid and so simple.'
—Daily Telegraph.

'The work is well worthy of attention, and should prove successful.'
—Newcastle Chronicle.

'Undoubtedly one of the most attractive things of its kind that has appeared for many a day. . . . Peculiarly English, suited to cultured and unlearned folk alike, and thoroughly artistic.'—Yorkshire Post.

CHURCH MUSIC

BY MARTIN SHAW

A MODAL SETTING OF THE COMMUNION SERVICE (80558). Composed at the request of the Church Music Society, and dedicated to the Choir at St. Mary's, Primrose Hill. It may be sung in harmony or in unison. Price, 6d. Vocal edition for Congregation, 3d.

'We are often asked to recommend a simple and dignified Mass. Here, at any rate, we have the very thing for which we are asked.'—Church Times.

THE OFFICE OF HOLY COMMUNION (80572). Musically noted by John Merbecke (A.D. 1550). Edited, with Organ Accompaniments. Price, 8d. Vocal edition for Congregations, 3d.

'Merbecke has been overdone as regards new versions; nevertheless, Mr. Shaw is justified in producing this. We think it will win favour widely as soon as it has got a fair start.'—Church Times.

AN ANGLICAN FOLK MASS (80583). Founded on native melodies. Price, 6d. Vocal edition for Congregation, 3d.

'The very thing for congregational use. The melodies could be very easily learnt, and when known they will be greatly liked.'—Church Times.

A PARISH COMMUNION SERVICE (80591). Incorporating some hymn-tunes. Price, 6d. Vocal edition for Congregation, 3d.

TALLIS' FUNERAL MUSIC (99001). Arranged for Organ by Martin and Geoffrey Shaw. Price, 1/-.

'The idea of the arrangers seems to be that we should play English music at funeral and memorial services instead of calling on alien sources, ancient and modern. . . . This music of Tallis deserves a hearty welcome for its own sake. It is full of noble melancholy. . . . It needs only to be well known to be widely appreciated.'—Musical Opinion.

SIMPLE MORNING SERVICE IN D (80582). Price, 6d.

A FESTAL VENITE (80587). Price, 6d.

MORNING AND EVENING SERVICE IN E FLAT. By Martin Shaw.

No. 1. Te Deum (in E \flat)	80563	6d
No. 2. Benedicite (in F)	80564	4d
No. 3. Benedictus (in E \flat)	80565	6d
No. 4. Jubilate	80566	4d
Nos. 5 & 6 (Magnificat (in E \flat) and Nunc Dimittis (in C Minor))	80567	6d

'As this setting of the morning and evening canticles includes the Jubilate, now rarely heard in parish churches, except in its natural place among the Psalms, it asserts a claim upon cathedral use. The music is melodious and flowing, and the accompaniment restrained and exceedingly effective. . . . The Service as a whole is worthy of a place in the choral worship of the Church.'—Church Times.

'There are many churches where the music for various reasons has to be of a simple nature; not prosaic or dull, or even congregational, as it is called, but compositions that fulfil the requirements of a choir doing a musical service without the elaboration or lengthiness associated by some people with such schemes. This is not an easy task to accomplish when writing canticles and anthems, so that when we find, as in this instance, that the composer has succeeded in making his music interesting—nay, more than that, dignified and with a near approach to beauty in a simple way—he is to be congratulated on an achievement.'—The Queen.

A SOLEMN TE DEUM IN C (80573). Price, 6d.

TE DEUM IN G MINOR (80655). Unison. Price, 4d.

MAGNIFICAT AND NUNC DIMITTIS IN A (80645). Partly in unison. Price, 6d.

GOD SAVE THE KING (61055). A new arrangement, with the second verse in Faux Bourdon, by Martin Shaw. The congregation or audience sing the melody of each verse. Price 4d.; Sol-fa, 3d.

'Mr Shaw has hit on the happy idea of adding life and interest to the singing of our National Anthem by providing a faux bourdon for the middle verse. The melody is there given to the tenor voice, a bass differing from that of the other verses is used, and the first and second sopranos ejaculate "Long live the King!" "God save the King!" "Long live our noble King!" and so forth, while the tenor and the bass proceed with the verse in the ordinary way. We should much like to hear the Anthem sung in this manner, and we are sure it will approve itself to those who adopt it.'—Church Times.

'An effective setting which should be of great service.'—Music Student.

Music for School and Home

by Martin and Geoffrey Shaw

8606 SONG-TIME. A book of Rhymes, Songs, Games, Hymns, and other music for all occasions in a child's life, by Percy Dearmer, D.D., and Martin Shaw.

The words and music are mainly traditional, and even in the music written specially the traditional spirit is maintained. The songs may be used as dances and games, and the 'hush' music introduces a welcome feature. Some special hymns are included, as the Editors, in supplying music for the whole of the child's life, do not believe in the watertight compartment theory of existence. They want children to be happy when they are good and good when they are happy. The aim of the Editors is to produce a book which will be welcomed wherever children are found. Price 4/- net cash; cloth, 6/- net cash.

'It is simply a treasure-house of songs for the little ones.'—Schoolm. 11.

'The whole thing is so well done, so very appropriate for children, that we can do no more than urge every mother (the fathers too) to procure the book.'—The Queen.

'The happy people of three years old and upwards who begin their musical experiences with "Song Time" will take to it like ducklings to water.'—The Times.

8616 THE SUNDAY KINDERGARTEN. The sacred section of the above book separately issued. Price 2/- net cash.

8614 A NURSERY SING-SONG. Rhymes by Christina Rossetti. Music by Martin Shaw. A collection of Twelve Songs for Young Children. Beautiful words and dainty music. Price, 2/6 net cash.
